BRITISH MINELAYING OPERATIONS

About 1050 Enemy Vessels Sunk

As a result of British minelaying during the war, approximately 1050 Axis warships and merchant ships were sunk and a further 540 damaged. Details are set out in an Admiralty table. The results are complete as far as is known to date, but additional casualties in Eastern waters have not yet been analysed. The majority of the casualties were caused by mines laid in enemy waters by aircraft, surface ressels and submarines. In some cases U-boats were lost where there is good reason to believe that the cause was due to mines laid by ships, but where the evidence is insufficient to justify a firm decision. In the casualty table a half point has been credited to the of the mines prior to being loaded on appropriate category of mines for each of these kills.

Some casualties were also caused by defensive minefields laid in our own and adjacent waters. The primary object of the latter fields was, however, the protection of our own shipping from attack by enemy surface craft General Inference: A depression and submarines and also as an antimost part, converted merchant vessels were employed. These included large freighters, car ferries and train ferries. The offensive fields were laid by Royal Air Force and Dominion aircraft by Further Outlook: Occasional rain in British naval aircraft, and by British cluded fast minelayers, destroyers, motor torpedo boats, motor launches and submarines. More than half of this offensive laying was done by Bomber Command of the Royal Air

As the sea mine is essentially a naval weapon, the broad control of all sea minelaying operations was vested in the Admiralty for operations at home, and naval Commanders-in-Chief for operations abroad.

JARROW, Saturday The "training ship" Seacroft, stablished by the Missions to Seamen in a 14-roomed residence at South tion under the direction of Dr. J. Hargreaves, principal of South Shields Marine School, and his staff. The sea atmosphere is adhered to as closely as possible and bedrooms are cabins named after famous vessels such as the Arandora Star, the Rawalpindi and Jervis Bay; port and starboard watches compete with each other week by week in tidiness, punctuality and behaviour for the honour of hoisting a pennant over the Missions' flag. From Our Own Correspondent CARDIFF, Saturday

Arrangements have been made for shipping some coke breeze to Finland, and it is expected that some of the pitprops which will be imported under the recent agreement with Finland will find their way to South Wales. In the week ended May 4 production in the coalfield was 479,345 tons, an increase of 207,999 tons over the previous seven days, when, however, operations were impeded by the Easter holidays. Manpower at 107,419 was 81 higher.

A strike involving about 200 men at the Cilely Colliery, Tonyrefail, ended with the men returning to work pending negotiations. The dispute arose over a claim for a guaranteed wage by about 150 of the men living in the Rhondda.

From Our Own Correspondent

JARROW, Saturday The hull of the Berengaria, once the German liner Imperator, which was brought to Jarrow in 1938 to be broken up, is to be taken to Rosyth for final breaking up in July. The hull is in two parts, 300 ft. and 500 ft. long, and partly submerged. Already 20,000 tons of steel and about 4000 tons of iron and metal have been recovered in the scrapping process, and some thousands Sir Cecil Lindsay Budd, K.B.E., of of tons still remain. Seven tugs will probably be used to take the pieces of hull out of the river.

There is no falling off in the demand for tonnage, but operations have been on a small scale. A large American vessel has been fixed on f.i.o terms from the St. Lawrence to the Adriatic Greece, but details as to the rate paid are not so far available. Another two or three more ships might be worked to the Adriatic/Dalmatia, including Greece, for which charterers indicate 29 cents per cu. ft. bale f.i.o., and there is an inquiry for flour from Philadelphia to Bordeaux/Dunkirk range at $14 free discharge.

Gulf exporters continue to inquire for vessels for sulphur for various destinations, and there is a maintenance of the demand for sugar carriers from Cuba, with 75s. indicated for vessels of any size for July loading to Amsterdam or Rotterdam. Further tonnage is reported to be working from the River Plate to the Continent, but the Eastern and African trades have provided no feature.

THE COAL TRADE

Special Market Reports

From Our Own Correspondents

CARDIFF

Operators on the Welsh steam market experience a keen demand for all but the very poorest qualities. Business remains as difficult as ever owing to the shortage of supplies. Collieries are well employed in satisfying urgent needs of inland consumers. Outputs generally show no material improvement and export business remains almost impossible to arrange. Limited quantities of the poorer grades, which home consumers do not want, are obtainable and some shipments are being made to the near Continental countries, but otherwise exports are almost at a standstill.

SWANSEA

Among anthracite smalls clean duffs are the strongest features, being consistently sought. Ordinary billy varieties display rather firmer tone in view of the steady support from exporters. Inferior culms are still occasionally available on the basis of former figures. Best smokeless steam large are busily employed. cheaper types being well engaged. Locomotive qualities are quickly taken coal, and other supplies are mostly under direction. The demand for and Durham bunkers are more than he market can meet in full and some deep sea tonnage is having to be leared, with bunker quantities less in cases than was hoped for. Foreign tonnage is having to rely partly on European supplies at Continental ports, where these can be arranged.

HULL

Railways, public utility undertakings and many essential industries are pressing for maximum contract deliveries; so ordinary consumers are somewhat neglected as far as their usual qualities are concerned. Exports are few and are mainly confined to official orders and of open-cast qualities. Coastwise traffic proceeds as usual and few new transactions are recorded. Bunkering is an active section, hards, smalls and washed thirds being the chief qualities in demand.

GLASGOW

Bunker inquiry has been good, but tension does not appear to have been so strong. Forward inquiry is fairly good. The position regarding sized coal has undergone no change, demand still exceeding output. As hitherto, the bulk of supplies are going to the utilities whose requirements remain on a high level. Dross is still widely used as a substitute for sized coals, and while first-class drosses are strong some others could do with business. Railway tonnages and the domestic market are absorbing the production of large anthracites is more or less sustained. and with short outputs the position can be termed quite strong. Shipments

COMPLAINT AGAINST SHIP'S BEDDING

From Our Own Correspondent

Two South Shields seamen prosecuted at South Shields Court for refusing to go to sea without reasonable cause. were told by the Bench that they had reasonable cause for refusing. The great men of the Victorian era, and men were James Scott, ship's cook, and the attention he devoted to maritime John Bruce, steward, and the charge and navigational instruments was such related to the steamer Tully Crosby.

Dismissing the cases, Alderman

MARINE NAVIGATION

Life of Lord Kelvin Filmed

As previously announced in Lloyd's

LIST, Lord Kelvin, the great physicist and founder, with James White, of the nautical instrument firm of JARROW, Saturday Kelvin, Bottomley & Baird, Ltd., Glasgow, is the subject of an industrial film which has recently been completed for the firm. Kelvin was one of the that to-day every ship and aeroplane carries some equipment that has been designed or evolved from the original conceptions of Lord Kelvin. Within the limits imposed by its > Master of Measurement," contrives to present a great man both in his times of struggle and in his hours of greatness, as the human, lovable genius he was in life. The film is built up round the laying of the Atlantic cable and also records his work in devising and producing the mirror galvanometer, the syphon recorder, the patent depth sounding machine and the light drycard compass, known as the Kelvin Compass. The film runs for 52 minutes. being available both in 35 mm. (sound) and 16 mm. (sound), and it will be shown to people engaged in marine instrument making and to scientific societies. At some later date a theatrical version of the film may be made-the present film readily lending itself to such treatment-and so be shown to the general public.
